Charles Douros Named as a National Safety Council Delegate Member

Senior Consultant of ProAct Safety was nominated and selected to serve in the elite group.

(The Woodlands, TX – September 12, 2019) On 7 September 2019, the National Safety Council named Charles J. Douros as a delegate member to its newest Board. Members of the Delegate Committee meet at least twice annually to actively provide guidance to NSC on safety and health issues and strategies.

Each year, the Nominating Committee presents a slate of Delegates for final approval by the Board Chair. The Committee then reviews the candidates for experience, interests and industry representation and recommends a diverse Delegate slate to help the Council advance the mission based on current goals and needs for the next year's term.

"I'm quite excited to have earned a seat at the table and look forward to a busy year bringing positive change to this industry I've grown to love," said Douros. New delegates met in advance of the convention to become acquainted with the charter, meet fellow delegates and members of the board, and begin working on the mission to eliminate preventable deaths at work, in homes and on the road.

NSC Board Member and Delegate Committee Co-Chairperson, Travis Parsons adds, "We welcome the new delegate [committee] members and have high expectations for some of the more noble challenges facing the Council."

Douros is also a member of two National Safety Council subcommittees: Workplace Safety, and Awards.
