ProAct Safety to Discuss Bridging the Safety Culture Gap with Contractors and Temporary Workers at BLR 2019 Safety Summit

Shawn M. Galloway will present a pre-conference session to discuss how to deal with safety issues with contractors and temporary workers.

(The Woodlands, TX – September 17, 2019) President of ProAct Safety, Shawn M. Galloway, will engage attendees and share expertise at the BLR 2019 Safety Summit on 18 September at Embassy Suites by Hilton Downtown Denver Convention Center.

His pre-conference session, “Safety Culture Beyond Your Organization: Strategies for Bridging the Safety Culture Gap with Contractors, Temporary Workers, and More,” will explore proven approaches to lay out a framework to ensure that individuals outside your organization can be quickly aligned with the safety strategy and culture. Galloway shared, “In this time of strategic outsourcing, many companies utilize contractors and temporary workers to support various business operations. Whether short- or long-term, in several companies these contractors and temporary individuals are a business necessity. As these organizations bring groups together representing different cultures around safety, new risks emerge. How well the cultural risks are identified and mitigated, and desired beliefs and behaviors improved, will be the new competitive advantage in safety performance.”
